Recruitment

ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR IN INTERNATIONAL AND EUROPEAN LAW

Catholic University Law School
Lille Campus

Full-time permanent contract to be filled no later than September 1er 2024

CONTEXT & ENVIRONMENT

The Université Catholique de Lille is a university federation with almost 40,000 students, including 2 engineering schools (Junia Hauts-de-France and ICAM Lille), 2 EQUIS, AACSB and AMBA accredited business schools (EDHEC, IESEG), a university hospital complex with 1,000 hospital beds and 500 EPHAD beds, a communications school (ISTC) and a faculty heart called the Institut Catholique de Lille (ICL). The ICL is a private higher education establishment of general interest, comprising 5 faculties (Law, Humanities, Medicine and Maieutic, Management, Economics and Science, Theology) and several schools. The University's research activities involve some 660 teacher-researchers, researchers and hospital academics, 17 research platforms and resources, 15 research chairs, 15 research units and institutes, including 1 DRCI (Direction de la Recherche Clinique et de l'Innovation), 2 co-supervised CNRS UMRs, 3 co-supervised EAs and 1 EA of its own (ETHICS - EA 7446).

The Faculty of Law is the legal teaching arm of the Institut Catholique de Lille. It has 3,900 students on two campuses in Lille and Issy-les-Moulineaux. The Faculty of Law's research unit, attached to the Doctoral School of the Université polytechnique des Hauts-de-France (UPHF), is the Centre de recherche sur les relations entre les risques et le droit (C3RD). It has 53 teacher-researchers and doctoral assistants, a research engineer and a research assistant. C3RD's work focuses on two main areas of research: risks generated by law and the legal framework for risk. C3RD's scientific activities focus on five themes: emerging risks, organisational ethics, security, vulnerabilities and the transformation of normativity.

PROFILE & SKILLS

The candidate must have a specialisation in international and/or European law (EU law, human rights...) in both research and teaching activities.

With a doctorate, he/she has demonstrated, through his/her scientific production, his/her skills and interest in European Union law (and international law); he/she is also interested in transdisciplinary approaches.

The candidate has extensive and varied experience in higher education.

The candidate must be fluent in French (C2) and English (C2). Any additional language skills are highly appreciated, particularly if they relate to the areas of comparative law developed at the Faculty of Law (German, Spanish).

He/she has good interpersonal skills, and the ability to interact, communicate and work as part of a team. He/she has a sense of commitment and responsibility. He/she is organised, rigorous, dynamic and responsive. The candidate must be available and committed to the university institution recruiting him/her as a permanent teacher-researcher. Teachers are often involved in organising or attending faculty events that are not directly related to their teaching and research. (Open days, high school immersions, student fairs, conferences, oratory jousts or eloquence competitions).

MISSIONS & CONDITIONS OF EMPLOYMENT

Research activities

The Senior Lecturer recruited will be required to:

- Produce written knowledge in the form of articles published in peer-reviewed scientific journals, book chapters and popularisation articles;
- participate in the activities and development of the [C3RD] research center, in conjunction with the Doctoral School of the Polytechnic University of Hauts-de-France;
- take part in the organisation of C3RD scientific events and be a driving force behind proposals;
- participate in responses to C3RD calls for projects;
- propose and write grant applications;
- participate in national and international symposia;
- participate in national and international research networks;
- prepare, in the medium term, for the habilitation to direct research (HDR).

Educational activities

The Senior Lecturer recruited will be required to:

- deliver and coordinate initial training courses on the Lille and Issy-les-Moulineaux campuses
- fulfill all related obligations, such as marking written and/or oral tests, continuous assessment and examinations, preparing teaching materials and making them available on the teaching resources center;
- take on all other teaching-related tasks: supervising dissertations, monitoring student progress, supervising and organising projects carried out in particular by students;
- mobilise the pedagogical innovation tools implemented within the Faculty of Law;
- take part in various in-house initiatives, such as the Clinique du droit, le droit en action, tutored support, etc.

- eventually lead one or more training courses

Participating in university life
The Senior Lecturer recruited will be required to:

- conduct innovative academic projects;
